There's no doubt that Taylor Swift has everything and everyone's looking to steal a little piece of her. First, Lady Gaga said she wasn't planning on adding Taylor to her Little Monsters tour, but after watching her performance at the Brit Awards, Lady Gaga is going to have to pay. The songstress had the best performance of the night by far, as she delivered a stunning performance of her hit single "Bad Blood" from her latest album, 1989, and it was the highest voted performance of the night. It didn't hurt that she was performing it for the first time in Britain. Although Taylor showed off a much more personal side on stage than on her previous tour, many still weren't thrilled with what they saw. The songstress, while talking backstage about her performance said "I was more interested in being a victim. I don't want to be like the victim. And I don't want to be the one who's gone through that. I don't want to be a victim." This performance was a step in a very different direction for Taylor, who had been the victim of her own song on many occasions, but now is focused on a more powerful message. Her first single "We Are Never Ever Getting Back Together" has been a hit for two years, but with this performance she's turning the tables on the singer who first released the song. Taylor Swift is now the victim, and she's making it very clear that Beyonce Knowles has crossed the line. Still, Taylor is no stranger to being the target of other performers. This isn't the first time Taylor Swift has been a target on Beyonce's tour. "Sorry" is not a happy song, and Taylor Swift delivered a stunning performance of the song. It was clear that Taylor was furious with Beyonce's performance, and the target was on both of their backs. Taylor Swift vs. Beyonce was voted the best performance of the night by online voters. It will be interesting to see how the voting

I am writing a program that calculates what vehicle financing I can get based on the specific conditions of my vehicle (KM, year, type, and where I live). I am already able to write this to an external text file. This same info is put into an Excel workbook where I can then run formulas to determine the car payment, bank fee, etc. Is it possible to take this data and have it populate the workbook using c# code? Thanks A: When you open the Excel workbook it will read the values from your external file. You would need to write the values to Excel from your external file: using System.IO; using Microsoft.Office.Interop.Excel; Excel.Worksheet sht = sheet1 as Excel.Worksheet; sht.Cells[0, 0] = "A"; sht.Cells[0, 1] = "B"; sht.Cells[0, 2] = "C"; As you can see above, I made an example to just make it appear in the first three cells. If you want to write the values in more cells, just use sht.Cells[0, 0] = "A";, sht.Cells[0, 1] = "B";, sht.Cells[0, 2] = "C"; etc... You can check this answer to see how to open a workbook in Excel and how to write a value to a cell. 2-week-old healthy newborn male was admitted to the Department of Neonatology for regular checkup after spontaneous birth by natural way.
