I'm writing a little performance test app for a framework that I don't control (and therefore don't know what it does and how it does it, so it's about as black box as you can get with most things). I'm using the celerybeat and celeryd utilities to regularly check that my celery task are running correctly. I'm starting celeryd in the foreground when I run my tests: `from celery.beat import main as celerybeat_main` `main(celerybeat_main, beat_scheduler=None)` It's easy enough to add a logging/debugging code around `celerybeat_main` to see what it's doing with both the database and the files it writes. I'm not sure why, but I see that celeryd writes various files to /tmp. One file is celerybeat, but there are many others, including ones that look like this:
2014-02-12 21:04:56 [pid: 10239]
[scheduler: scheduler_common.py:84]
scheduler.scheduler - Connecting to db: sqlite:///tmp/celerybeat-3b64a7dd4-15cb
