Multidisciplinary treatment of soft-tissue and bone recurrence of head and neck cancer. Recurrent head and neck squamous cell carcinoma (HNSCC) is a common complication of radiotherapy for early-stage disease. Its clinical manifestation may include invasion of soft tissue, local bony destruction, or both. Therapy is based on the site of recurrence, degree of differentiation, and previous treatment. Aggressive surgical resection is sometimes necessary. Adjuvant external-beam radiotherapy is often used to reduce recurrence and prolong survival. In combination with chemotherapeutic agents, this increases local control of lesions confined to skin and subcutaneous tissue. In the case of recurrence limited to bony structures, denosumab is a
