Many college courses teach Photoshop as part of a photography course. ## Creating a Photoshop File New users often ask how to begin creating a Photoshop file. They assume that if they open the software, click the Create button, and then save the file, they've automatically created a new file. While it is true that once you save the file, it becomes a new file with a different name, that file is a _version._ You then have the ability to make changes to a previous version. To begin creating a new file, do the following: 1. Create a new file using the File ⇒ New from Template command. 2. Navigate to the folder where you want to save the file. 3. Choose a template that describes the type of project you want to create, and click Open. You have a number of template choices: * Photographic: Choose this template for an image file or a slide show. * Illustrative: This template enables you to create a painting or drawing. Choose this option if you have special artistic needs. * Photo Album: Choose this template for a photo album, a scrapbook, or a print book. You also can choose a preset type of file to create, such as PDF, Graphic Design, PDF/X-3, or EPS. If you see the word Effect (fx) in a menu, then you can use the default settings that the template has set. If the fx option isn't available, then you can change the settings. Also, if you cannot find the option in the menu, simply right-click the icon of the template on the File menu and choose the option that works best for you. 4. In the dialog box that opens, enter a name for the new file in the File Name text box, and then click Save. The name can be as simple as _IMAG0026.psd,_ but if you're creating a complex file with a lot of layers, you should choose a descriptive name. Also be careful not to use spaces in a filename, which means you'll have to enter the file name through the dialog box's Text box, as shown in Figure 1-6. FIGURE 1-6: The file name is limited to 80 characters. 5

Surgical management of infected acute tibial plateau fractures: Outcomes and risk factors associated with readmission and reoperation. Tibial plateau fractures are injuries most commonly seen in trauma. Those that are complicated by infection have additional associated morbidity. This study presents the results of treatment of this injury, including the timing of surgery and decision to perform debridement or arthroplasty. This is a retrospective review of patients who were treated at a single level I trauma center between 2005 and 2016 for acute tibial plateau fractures with deep infection and underwent either (1) surgical debridement or (2) arthroplasty. Patients were excluded if they had previously undergone internal fixation or had associated injuries that could also affect the outcome of treatment. The primary outcome was the number of infectious complications over time and whether this was a readmission or a reoperation. A secondary outcome was any complication requiring readmission or reoperation. Ninety-nine patients met the inclusion criteria. The average patient age was 43 (range, 15-94 years) with 75% male and 75% right-sided. The average patient follow-up was 6 months (range, 12 months to 5.6 years). The average time to surgery from the initial injury was 45 days (range, 1-334 days). Among 87 patients, the average time between admission and surgical debridement of the infected fracture was 25 days (range, 1-135 days). The average time to delay of arthroplasty was 206 days (range, 5-929 days). Of the 89 cases that had union of the infected fracture, 7 had local wound complications, 18 had a pulmonary complication, 15 had recurrent infection, 5 had a deep vein thrombosis, 4 had a deep infection requiring reoperation, and 4 had a septic arthritis. The average time to a reoperation was 744 days (range, 120-2,178 days). The median number of infectious complications during the follow-up period was three (range, 0-10). There were 16 patients who had two or more infectious complications over the follow-up period and who had 20 reoperations (1-3 per patient) during that period. The average number of infectious complications was twice per patient. The probability of readmission at 2 years was 21% and of reoperation was 26%. The rate of complications was twice as high among patients who were infected for more than 30 days. Treatment of acute tibial plateau fractures by arthroplasty alone is Intense training for Medical and Dental Students: A Quality Improvement Initiative. Research suggests an association between higher levels of stress and academic performance. To investigate and assess satisfaction among third-year medical students in their first year of post-graduate training in a hospital-based year of intensive teaching and research. Pre-post intervention study. A focused curriculum was introduced and applied to third year medical students in the 2009 academic year. Assessment was made of the most promising intervention sessions using questionnaires and focus group discussions (FGDs). The highest levels of satisfaction were related to the seminars and roundtable discussions. These were followed by clinical skills training and the Research Project (RIP). The lowest levels of satisfaction were related to the sessions on ethics and written assessment. The data suggested that a focused curriculum can be effective in meeting the educational needs of postgraduate students and the need to consider the educational curriculum in a broader perspective. Based on the results, an assessment was undertaken to determine whether an improvement in educational performance was achieved. This resulted in the development of a new curriculum.Q: Get point coordinates from the indexed table in mysql/php CREATE TABLE town_map (town_id int(10) NOT NULL, name varchar(30) NOT NULL, UNIQUE KEY town_id (town_id)) ENGINE=MyISAM DEFAULT CHARSET=latin1; INSERT INTO town_map (town_id, name) VALUES (1, 'Талаид'), (2, 'Домодюмск'), (3, 'Узбекистан'); I have table. How I can get indexes from this table? DELETE FROM town_map WHERE town_id=3 I want to get coordinates ('51.5108-26.5644' etc), but in the real table contains more than one records like these, and I need to get coordinates by multiple indexes. In a single record (all indexes is one) I can use this: SELECT ST_AsText(ST_Centroid(geometry)) AS centroid FROM town_map WHERE town_id=3 But I don't know how to get the centroid for the whole table. A: You could use the BET
