The invention relates to a method of preparing a gas- and water-impervious article by the use of an anchoring film and a cover film. The anchoring film and the cover film are joined along a common boundary. The invention also relates to the gas-and water-impervious article prepared by the method. In the interior of a household, household appliances (e.g., refrigerator, washing machine and dishwasher) often are equipped with electronic control elements (a control circuit board, a sensor, an electronic switch) for controlling the operation of the appliances. These electronic control elements usually are equipped with a protective cover, or more precisely a cover insulating sheet, to protect the control circuit board and the like from moisture and dust. In case a control element is embedded in a flexible base plate or in a frame for insertion into a conventional household appliance, the base plate or the frame is covered with a cover plate to protect the control element inside. The electronic control elements in the above case are often covered with a cover plate before the electronic control elements are installed in the household appliance. In such a case, an anchoring film is adhesively bonded to the inside of the appliance as a support. In general, the anchoring film is not water-impervious because it is used for cushioning. A known anchoring film, produced by laminating a base film or an anchoring film of a high oil absorption capacity with an adhesive film of a lower oil absorption capacity, is used to waterproof the electronic control element. Because the anchoring film is not water-impervious, the 3e33713323
