It doesn't matter as long as you know that these are original statistics. The basic idea is that you earn free credits (the equivalent of gold in the game) by learning new words in English. As with all English learning games, this relies heavily on a good vocabulary. You can earn credits faster by learning new words, and earning more credits gives you more free time to learn more. You can also earn more credits by being a good player. At the moment, you can earn more than 200 credits per hour (but remember that those credits don't get you anything special in the game, so there's little reason to do this.) English: The difference between the different types of words is based on the part of speech, grammatical function, and whether or not the word is made up of parts of other words. See the description of words in the Vocabulary page for more information. There are four parts of speech in English: noun, verb, adjective, and adverb. English: Note that the nouns that you learn in English also count towards your wordbank. Nouns are by far the most common part of speech in any language, so if you want to learn a language you need to learn nouns. The nouns you learn count towards your wordbank.
