* Have you ever heard someone say that they Photoshop an image? That is actually not a proper term because it's not supposed to be a verb. People use it these days, however, because of its wide usage. Photoshop can be used as a verb even when you want to say that you "edit your images." * Photoshop is an acronym for "Photoshop Image Manipulation Program" and was originally created in 1992 by the company Adobe as a way to manipulate the images that businesses use to advertise their products. The name refers to the fact that it is designed to be used by professionals (as opposed to simply for personal use).

Adobe Photoshop, if you're on Linux, can work on certain file types natively, and do it very quickly. Photoshop is not readily available on Linux yet, so you have to use a package manager to install it. If you're a graphic designer, you can often find plugins to Photoshop on the web, but if you're looking to edit photos with Photoshop Elements, these are quite a bit easier to find. In order to install Adobe Photoshop, you'll need to download the packages from the official website ( and move it to the location where the package manager is installed. The package manager is usually called PackageKit. You can usually find information on their website, or on the Ubuntu Software Centre under the "Installed software" tab.

Here's a couple of packages to install. Adobe Photoshop: Description: This package contains everything to make Adobe Photoshop available to the Ubuntu desktop. Installation: sudo apt install adobesoftware-photoshop Adobe Photoshop Elements: Description: This package contains the Photoshop Elements software only. Installation: sudo apt install adobesoftware-photoshop-elements Other packages that might be useful for other software for Linux include these: GIMP Description: GIMP is an advanced free image editor for photos, Web graphics and standard-bitmap graphics. It is intended to be simple to use, while providing powerful features for experts. Installation: sudo apt install gimp CorelDRAW Graphics Suite Description: CorelDRAW Graphics Suite is an advanced graphics design tool which provides comprehensive applications for non-photographic work, and that will help you bring your ideas to life. Installation: sudo apt install coreldraw-graphics-suite LinuxPaint Description: LinuxPaint is a highly configurable free vector graphics editor. Installation: sudo apt install linuxpaint Linux Composer Description: Linux Composer is a free modular graphics software, which runs on various architectures and operating systems, available for Linux and Macintosh. Installation: sudo apt install linuxcomposer GIMP is an advanced free image editor for photos, Web graphics and standard-bitmap graphics 9b3c6dd9d5

Getty Images Former NFL player Colin Kaepernick stirred up a lot of controversy when he took a knee during the national anthem before a game last season, and as the defending champion Vikings have their eye on him as a potential quarterback, they weren't about to pass on an opportunity to weigh in. According to the Minneapolis Star Tribune's Tom Pelissero, running back Latavius Murray thinks the then-free agent's decision to kneel could've been justified, and he believes Kaepernick's a good quarterback who should get a chance to find a new team. "I'm not going to sit here and say that I agree with what he did, but I also understand the reasoning behind it," Murray said. "You have to give him props for what he did and the way he did it. I think it was more of a conversation starter than anything. He was just taking a stand, being a man." Murray's coach, Mike Zimmer, wasn't willing to go that far, but he agreed the time for Kaepernick was over. "I don't think anybody has a right to stand on the sideline and I don't think anybody has a right to kneel during our anthem," Zimmer said. There are a lot of politics involved in that topic, and they're not going anywhere. Murray's comments make it sound like the Vikings aren't ready to reach across the aisle and try to find an under-the-radar quarterback who could play for them this year. In the meantime, they might want to keep an eye on a potential star, regardless of whether his team ever plays him in a game.Q: How to select X characters of a string How can I select X characters from a string? For example, >>> s='string' >>> select(s, 4) #should give me the character 'nt' A: In Python 2.7+: import itertools seq = list(itertools.islice(s, 4, None)) EDIT: If you want to get a substring from your original string, change the second argument to 4. A: This is what I used to ensure that a group of characters is always in a certain position: First, create

What's New In Adobe Photoshop CS4?

Introduction {#S0001} ===== Acute cerebellar ataxia in childhood is often caused by a viral infection, such as enterovirus, poliovirus, mumps, herpes virus, or West Nile virus \{[@CIT0001]\}. It is also an uncommon complication of congenital infection \{[@CIT0002]\}. Parvovirus B19 infection has been well recognized as a cause of anemia, arthritis, nephropathy, and erythema infectiosum \{[@CIT0003], [@CIT0004]\}. However, there are only a few reports of acute ataxia caused by B19 infection \{[@CIT0005]-[@CIT0008]\}. The aim of our study was to further investigate the possibility of B19 infection in the etiology of acute ataxia in children. Patients and methods {#S0002} ===== We retrospectively investigated all children with ataxia for a period of 4 years from December 2005 to October 2009 in our hospital. Patients with cerebellar ataxia of unknown etiology and those under 10 years were excluded from this analysis. In total, 68 children were enrolled in the study, which included 30 boys and 38 girls. The median age of the patients was 5.2 (range: 3--8) years. The ataxia appeared suddenly without any prior history of neurological symptoms or other symptoms of infection. In 27 patients, acute infectious enteritis had been diagnosed before ataxia onset. All of the 27 had negative cerebrospinal fluid findings. B19 infection was confirmed by a positive real-time polymerase chain reaction (RT-PCR) of serum in 29 patients (42%). Fourteen patients (20%) were positive for anti-B19 IgM or anti-B19 IgG antibodies. Anti-human leukocyte antigen (HLA) DQA1\*05:01 and anti-DQB1\*02:01 were identified in all of them. Viral cultures were negative in all cases. There was no association between positivity for anti-B19 antibodies and the patients' age, gender, underlying diseases, or ataxia features. All the anti-B19 positive patients were treated with intravenous immunoglobulin, methylprednisolone and supportive care in a clinical protocol for acute ataxia without any complications \{
