Bridging of the peripheral vascular system with a Dacron prosthesis for small diameter arterial reconstruction in acute ischemic arterial occlusive disease. Central, peripheral, and limb salvage was accomplished in a group of 10 patients with acute ischemic arterial occlusive disease (18-32 years old), using a silastic tube prosthesis which was anastomosed to the distal ends of superficial and musculocutaneous perforating arteries. There was a 27% patency rate at six months for the anastomosis sites and a 43% patency rate at one year for the native segments (p less than 0.05).[Enzyme immunoassay for the determination of serum thyrotropin. A comparison with a RIA method]. A competitive enzymatic method for TSH determination has been compared with a RIA method in 50 blood donors. Our results show a good concordance between the two methods (r = 0,949). The method used is much more simple and quicker than RIA. Nevertheless, the cheap and quantitative character of the method must be taken into account, especially when screening for hypothyroidism among goitrous patients in "high risk" groups. Why Amazon.com can't ignore itself - jerrya ====== weel I wonder how long they could get away with this kind of behavior. I have a theory that ultimately: Amazon customers could vote with their pocketbooks and put Amazon out of business. Though these customers don't seem to realize it. ~~~ pg I doubt that's true, even if it would be a good idea. As companies get more complex, the possibility for them to screw over their customers gets greater. Their best protection against that is simple: Trust. A company that knows it will be around for many years to come generally doesn't keep trying to screw customers. Besides, you don't know what you're going to get if you trust them for a long time. ------ breck I find it hard to believe that they can't build this into their sales software. :) Of course, whether or not it's a good idea depends on how they are doing it. ~~~ lsb Can

All About Breastfeeding Breastfeeding and Pumping Breastfeeding is great for babies. When nursing your baby, you and your baby are connected. Breastfeeding means bonding, nurturing and giving the best start for baby. It is also the easiest way to feed your child. Your body produces milk naturally. It takes just 15 minutes of feeding your baby to produce enough milk to feed baby up to eight times a day for the first few months of your baby's life. Your baby gets the most nutrition from breastfeeding. That's why breastmilk is called "golden liquid" for babies. Breastfeeding can be done in the hospital if you need to. In fact, breastfeeding is natural and the safest way to feed baby. Even if you are not a baby's mother, you can still feed baby on demand. During the first few months of life, baby depends on you to provide milk for him. In addition, baby can't breastfeed when he is awake. So this makes it a perfect time for you to breastfeed baby. More and more parents are choosing to breastfeed. The more people breastfeed, the less likely it is for babies to be born prematurely, and for mothers to develop breast or ovary cancer. As a matter of fact, breastfed babies are less likely to die as a result of SIDS. Breastfeeding makes you feel good and helps you get back in shape. Even if you never want to breastfeed, you might want to think about it again. Breastfeeding makes your breasts look and feel like they have been nurtured with milk. To enjoy their full look and feel, pump your breasts once or twice a day while your baby is sleeping. A built-in electric pump pumps out the milk to your collection container, keeping it ready to use. Pumping is very easy to do. Even if you have never pumped milk before, you will find it simple to learn and very easy to master. If you have never pumped milk before, you might want to try it in the shower, if you can find a place that is warm enough. You need two things: a manual pump to use the suction power to pump milk from the nipples a collection container An electric pump will make things easier, but you can still learn to pump with a manual pump. The next thing to remember about pumping is that you will probably not pump enough milk to make bottle feeding totally convenient. If you have never pumped
