More than that, the AI of the new game harnesses all the data, including the speed of movement, and applies the same individual knowledge to every player in the squad on every situation. While the other statistical disciplines used in the matchday engine are the same across the board for every player - numbers like shooting, successful passes, and the distance covered - "the hyper-motion technology dives in and knows your skill level and the strength of the player," says Jürgen Dammerhuis, executive producer for FIFA. "We can see if the player is an autoloader, a weak defender, an attacker or a midfielder." As a result of this new cognitive software, Dammerhuis estimates that the granular way players are assessed in the new game will make "significant progress" on players who previously wouldn't have been considered at the team level. To access that level of detail, EA DICE have developed a new, high-performance simulation engine, Pro-Engine. Dammerhuis says the tech provides a new level of player performance without compromising the quality of the AI driving it. That kind of fine-tuning happens at the systemic level, Dammerhuis says, where each of the minute details, every part of the movement and the decision making of your player are working in sync with the rest of the squad. And from there, a wider scale of consequences follows. "For me, 'winning' will be the end of the story, which a lot of people have missed as you see. Winning is not the final end of everything. Winning is just the beginning of the story. So, it's a 360-degree experience. It's the wrong way of thinking, if you don't win." A new path to glory Where FIFA 18 introduced a direct ranking system, with Player Level playing a vital role in the game's progression, FIFA 22 will see player performance become less of a factor in the game's difficulty. FIFA 22 introduces a new, more interesting way to play. In previous games, Dammerhuis says, players would often defend a goalkeeper by staying back with the corner flag - and that was the most efficient way to use their loadout and skillset. FIFA 22 introduces a new idea, however. As the game accelerates to the point of near-impossibility,

EA SPORTS FIFA is a videogame that lets you play, watch and experience football. The game is available on platforms including Sony PS3, Xbox 360, Wii, PS Vita, PC, Nintendo 3DS and Wii U. FIFA is the world's biggest club game with over 200 million players and has won over 100 awards including ten BAFTAs. And now, with EA SPORTS FIFA 22, FIFA gets even closer to the real thing. Brought to you by the creators of the FIFA franchise, FIFA 22 features an all-new shooting system, new dribbling moves, improved physics and contextual shooting, and new defensive moves. All while retaining the football authenticity and innovation of previous instalments. Join Lionel Messi as he attempts to claim his third Ballon D'Or. The Switch brings FIFA franchise to the palm of your hand With Nintendo Switch, FIFA 22 is now able to deliver all the action of the world's most popular football videogame anywhere, anytime. FIFA players are getting real with the all-new shooting system. Shoot like Lionel Messi. Control Lionel Messi. With the all-new shooting system, FIFA 22's shooting controls allow players to shoot with authentic tight knit movement of their controller and accurate shooting from tight angles. The shooting system also gives the control player the sense of playing with a real football and there's a wide range of shots to choose from, including chip shots, offsides, free kicks, and the goal keeper, all of which can be taken perfectly thanks to a refined new physics engine. And the revolution continues. Using the GamePad is now easier than ever with contextual shooting. All of your planning, preparation and skill come together. A new range of contextual shooting controls allow players to shoot just like Lionel Messi. With the GamePad in hand, players will be able to control their shot with precision thanks to contextual shooting. Only by taking the shot in the correct window can players make a realistic goal, and by planning where to shoot ahead of time, all the skill and timing can be orchestrated perfectly. Authentic dribbling, contextual moves and contextual shooting - FIFA's shooting system unlocks the real footballer Players will be able to run, dribble and shoot at the
