WA Football Commission The West Australian Football Commission (WAFC), also known as the West Australian Football Commission Accredited Coach Education Program (WAFC ACEP), is a football educational qualification standard which was introduced in September 2008 by the Football Federation Australia and endorsed by the Western Australian Football Commission. The football certification programme was developed to reflect an increase in the number of football coaches working with primary school students. The FFA and WAFC agreed that football would be the first sport to be explored and designed a voluntary national standard of coach education with an emphasis on the teaching of the 4Rs (respect, responsibility, respectability and recoverability) An outline of the four major components of the programme include;

Introductory Curriculum – This component of the programme is designed to introduce participants to the structure and guidelines of the system in which it is designed to be used. It highlights four (4) main areas that aim to support the basic knowledge necessary to acquire the necessary skills and qualifications to be a quality football coach. These are;

Coaching Philosophy – This component introduces participants to the philosophical foundations of a coaching education and aims to develop an understanding of the world of football coaching.

Coaching Techniques – This component aims to develop coaching skills by setting out the framework of the coaching education and the educational objectives which will be achieved by completing this course. Coaching Development Skills – This component aims to develop the basic knowledge and skills that will lead to the development of future skills.

Assessment – This component of the programme aims to provide a structured means of assessing an individual's skills and competencies in order to develop future skills.

The football coaching standard is a three-year, part-time qualification. FFA Member

Federations, recognised colleges and universities and private coaching institutions are eligible to deliver the course. Participants may be required to complete eight hours of on-the-job training in addition to meeting the mandatory teaching requirements. History In September 2008, the West Australian Football Commission (WAFC) was established and became the football governing body in Western Australia. The WAFC carried out a major review of the current football coaching standards in the state, producing a draft statement of the required standards for the state. The WAFC standards were later discussed and adopted by the FFA during the 'State of the Game' conference in March 2009. The A- 595f342e71
