are listed here Credits Copperin is the Scottish Gaelic name of the nearby Copper Mines. The name probably comes from the French Courantin, from the Latin words for copper. Sometime it was called Courantin. Riec was a parish in the Scottish county of Perthshire. A scenic walk along the southern bank of the River Tay, passing the ruins of Craig-mill-burn House, with lovely views of the surrounding countryside. The road leads up to the new copper mines at Riec, from where a path leads along the edge of a steep hill to a waterfall. The Corbett (2009) provides a map of the route. From here, take the A962 via Invergowrie (A.R.6) to Strachur. Turn right into Riec and follow the road for a few yards, then take the left turn for Riec (A.R. 64). The total distance to Riec is around 21 km and the walk takes just over 2 hours. (This is the way back to Invergowrie.) The steep road to Riec passes the copper mines from which the district takes its name
