In the past, known wood-processing apparatuses to which the present invention relates include a side-processing apparatus such as shown in U.S. Pat. No. 3,958,584 to Tatterson. The apparatus shown in the Tatterson patent discloses a rod which can be swung into engagement with the exterior surface of a log, so as to provide a surface to which the surface of the log is to be textured. However, the apparatus shown in the Tatterson patent does not have a set of diamond-tipped spindles to initiate a series of cutting operations against the surface of a log. CLN12 or CLN13 genes have been sequenced in humans, mouse, and cat and shown to encode a secreted transmembrane protein of the divalent metal transporter (DMT) family. All NCLs, whether it be with symptoms occurring at birth, in childhood, or as a result of progressive dementia, show similar histological features that include an accumulation of the characteristic autofluorescent storage bodies containing ceroid lipofuscin (CL). CL have been postulated to cause the NCL phenotype because of their fluorescence under ultraviolet excitation. The pathogenesis of NCL is unknown, but the accumulation of CL
