Schwann cell differentiation into NGF secreting neuron-like cells. Schwann cells (SCs) are multipotent neural crest-derived cells that function in the peripheral nervous system (PNS). The induction of SC differentiation into neuronal phenotypes has been investigated using a number of neuronal growth factors. Here we describe the differentiation of SCs into neuron-like cells using nerve growth factor (NGF). This was achieved by the addition of NGF to SC cultures and was confirmed by morphological, immunocytochemical and functional analyses. NGF-stimulated SCs differentiated into neuron-like cells with elongated neurites and immunocytochemical staining for neuron-specific antigens. Functionally, NGF-stimulated SCs were neurally responsive to the same stimulus as the NGF-differentiated neurons. The induction of SC differentiation into a neuron-like phenotype suggests that NGF can be used to generate neuron-like cells from the PNS for replacement therapies. The calendar module features a wide range of options, including ability to add multiple events at once. There are a few things that can be done via this screen, such as, Changing our current profile picture, Adding Calendar Events/Saving them, etc. After changing the profile picture, we need to swipe left or right in order to see the events that we've saved in our calendar. Moreover, in this screen, there's a search bar to help find particular events, but this only works if you've added it to your calendar. Setting up the events So far, we've only covered those features available in the basic mode of the calendar. If you want to have your events be posted on social media, you'll need to go to the Social Media part. The social media part of the calendar gives us the ability to easily share our events to our accounts such as Facebook, Twitter and other social media sites. This happens automatically when you add an event to the calendar, as seen in the photo above. You'll also see a pop up showing you how many people are currently attending your events, too. Adding contacts to the events You can add a contact to any event, by tapping the person's name, as shown in the screenshots above. This will cause the person's information to be automatically saved in the Event details, on the date the person is scheduled to be at your event. What to do if the person's information is not saved or not even visible When you tap on the person's name in the event details, you may see the persons information is not visible/saved. In this case, the person's information will not be added to your events. However, if you tap on the '+' button in the top right, it will open a screen
