Abstract: In this study, composting bags designed by two shoe-tying companies were analyzed by measuring the contact areas in two dimensions. The purpose was to establish the contact area of shoe-tying bags and create optimal sizes of bags. The contact areas were measured before and after each shoe-tying tie in the composter. Surface contact areas of the shoe-tying bag were found to be larger than those of the composting bag. The contact area at the instep of the shoe-tying bag was larger than that at the toe. These results suggest that the composter should be designed with smaller size bags as well as shorter instep bags and longer toe bags to facilitate the insertion of compost in the shoe-tying bag.. The following steps are recommended for designing shoe-tying bags: Composter design. Tie design. Measurement of the contact area of shoe-tying bags..

This role is fulfilled by the more recent design. The Raisin is a rarely seen design because there were only two pre-production models made. The Raisin has the chassis of the M40 Locust, the engine is from the StuG III and the side armour is from the M40 105mm Paladin. This vehicle has the option of carrying either an 8.4cm KwK40 L/43 or a 47mm KwK42 gun. Gallbladder carcinoma is the most common malignancy of the biliary tract and the second most common malignancy of the gastrointestinal tract.

Molecular analysis of gallbladder carcinoma has shown that it has a similar genetic profile to pancreatic cancer, suggesting that it should be considered as a pancreatic cancer subtype. To describe the clinicopathologic profile and molecular mutations of gallbladder carcinoma in Libyan patients. Clinical, pathologic, and molecular data were collected from histologically diagnosed gallbladder carcinoma patients treated at the Tripoli Medical Center between 1993 and 2001. Initial clinicopathologic correlations were collected from the pathology files, and paraffin-embedded tissue samples were examined for mutations in codons 12, 13, and 61 of the K-ras oncogene, and codons 12, 13, and 18 of the p53 tumor suppressor gene. Twenty-two specimens were collected during the 5-year study period, which accounted for 20.8% of the total number of cases treated in that
