1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a door structure for use with a vehicle. 2. Description of the Related Art Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 2002-291274 discusses a conventional door structure for use with a vehicle. According to this document, a door outer panel formed of an upper portion and a lower portion is formed to have substantially a U-shape. The upper portion of the door outer panel is supported by a pillar and a floor panel. The lower portion is provided with a door outer peripheral side portion extending from an end of the upper portion along the pillar. However, in the conventional door structure, the door outer peripheral side portion extends along the pillar, and therefore, the door outer peripheral side portion tends to bulge out in a side of the pillar during a side collision of a vehicle. Since the door outer peripheral side portion is supported by the pillar and the floor panel, the door outer peripheral side portion is prevented from deforming due to the side collision of the vehicle. However, the door outer peripheral side portion is supported only at a lower end thereof, and therefore, the door outer peripheral side portion may tend to droop downward. Further, the door outer peripheral side portion may generate noise due to deformation during a normal running of a vehicle.
