Their clinical presentation and course are often not clearly distinguished from that of tuberculous lymphadenitis. Therefore, a series of German guidelines were published for nontuberculous mycobacteria lymphadenitis. These recommendations include both practical and strategic aspects for both inpatient and outpatient treatment of the disease. The recommendations are classified into three major areas: 1. Patient-centered aspects (diagnosis, treatment strategies); 2. Surgeon-centered aspects (surgery, disinfection, wound closure); 3. Management of postoperative complications. ## Jumplist-Launcher

Add up to 60 programs, files or folders to a jumplist which can be launched directly from the titlebar. This will work as well for LXDE or i3wm as for LXDE, Openbox or Awesome. Jumplist-Launcher is free software, distributed under the GNU Public License, and it is basically a special application that adds programs and files, which could later be launched easily from the titlebar. Three different ways to add things to a jumplist are available. You can choose to add the things to a folder, to a program or to a file. If you choose to add to a folder, the items will also be added to a recently used folder, making it easier to find again. You have the option to make a jumplist non-transient, which means that it will save the list of items when you quit. It comes with an already preloaded jumplist, which you can change, add or delete things in the jumplist. You can launch a program, folder or a file just by typing its name. It has a very easy to use interface. You can also start a new application with a hotkey, edit the hotkeys to open new applications and adjust their size and position or execute a function by pressing Ctrl+Alt. It works with all DEs, including KDE, i3wm, LXDE and Openbox. ... and here is a screenshot: A: I use the Superbar icon-editor: Install the following dependencies: `sudo apt-get install alacarte menu-editor bzip libfast-ml-utils mc hicolor-icon-theme lm-sensors uuid-runtime` Then launch a terminal and run: `$ bzip branch lp:superbar-icon-editor $ cd superbar-icon-editor $ ./install.sh` Now run alacarte and click on "New" > "LXDE Application". ## What's New in the Jumplist-Launcher?

Use Jumplist-Launcher to add up to 60 programs, files or folders within self-defined groups inside a jumplist. This free tool allows you to combine several programs and files at once. How do I create my own "group"? You'll have to rename your .ini file to .ini-rc.ini to create a new group by the name of 'My Groups'. It has to be named ".ini-rc.ini" so it gets loaded with rc.ico file name (i.e. "My Groups.ini-rc.ini"). Add programs to it by using the "+" button and select a group. The new application will appear in the jumplist. Delete the program by using the "-" button and select the program in the jumplist. Right-Click a program, a file or a folder and select "Add to Jumplist" and a new jumplist item will appear with the program name: 1.
