ZTE Zmax Pro ADB Fastboot Tool: If you have bought .This application claims the priority of Korean Patent Application No. 10-2005-0116484, filed on Nov. 25, 2005, in the Korean Intellectual Property Office, the disclosure of which is incorporated herein in its entirety by reference. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a structure of an optical transceiver module, and more particularly, to a structure of an optical transceiver module which, in a structure of an optical transceiver module including a metal chassis, easily reinforces a base substrate and effectively dissipates heat generated in the optical transceiver module. 2. Description of the Related Art Generally, a transceiver module refers to a device which converts and transmits an electrical signal to and from an optical signal, and vice versa. More particularly, the transceiver module serves to convert an electrical signal to an optical signal, and vice versa, and transmits the optical signal to a transceiver in an optical transmission system. A transceiver module includes a printed circuit board (PCB) on which a variety of components are mounted, and an electrical connector, such as a receptacle connector, fixed to the PCB. In the meantime, an electronic device, such as a server, a computer, a mobile device, etc. also includes a connector which allows the electronic device to be connected to an external device, such as a display device, a printer, a scanner, etc., as well as a connector which allows the electronic device to be connected to a network such as a local area network (LAN), a personal area network (PAN), a wide area network (WAN), etc. In order for an electronic device to be connected to a variety of electronic devices, the electronic device requires a variety of connectors. Such connectors include a receptacle connector, which allows the electronic device to be connected to another electronic device, and a plug connector, which allows the electronic device to be connected to a variety of external devices. In addition, the receptacle connector may include a receptacle connector, which allows a data connector of an electronic device, such as a computer, a mobile device, etc., to be connected to an electronic device, such as a printer, a scanner, etc., as well as a receptacle connector, which allows the electronic device, such as the computer, the mobile device, etc., to be connected to the data connector of the electronic device, such as the printer, the scanner

Approximately 30% of patients with a diagnosis of depressive disorders experience functional disability. About 50% of patients with major depressive disorder (MDD) who are depressed (according to American Psychiatric Association criteria) do not recover during a single episode, while 25-30% have a chronic course that is associated with recurrent depressive episodes. The prevalence of lifetime major depression (MDD) is 2-3% in the general population. Depressive episodes occurring during a given lifetime period have a female preponderance. All forms of depression are associated with a higher rate of suicide. Prevalence of MDD is in the range of 5-10% in primary care populations. Hypothyroidism, especially in elderly patients, is associated with increased risk of depression, and probably of suicide. Females are four times more likely to suffer from depression than males. The median age at first onset of depressive episodes is in the range of 20-25 years. MDD is usually an episodic disorder that occurs in relatively young individuals. The prognosis of MDD is poor, and disability may persist for more than a decade. Although there are effective treatment options for depression, many patients do not respond adequately to conventional antidepressant therapy. Substantial evidence shows a significant benefit of psychotherapy in the acute treatment of depression. In addition, depression in medical patients can be effectively treated by patient education, clinical management, and possibly psychopharmacology. The primary objective of the study is to measure the relative risk of HIV infection in the subset of exposed heterosexuals who are screened negative at 3 and 6 months and who are enrolled in one of the study's prevention trials. The goals of the study are to: 1) determine the risk of HIV infection for exposed heterosexuals who are screened negative at 3 and 6 months, compared to those who are screened negative only at 6 months; 2) determine the risk of HIV infection for exposed heterosexuals who are screened positive at 3 and 6 months, compared to those who are screened positive only at 6 months; 3) determine the relative risk of HIV infection for exposed heterosexuals who are found to be HIV positive at screening, compared to those who are found to be HIV negative at screening; 4) determine the relative risk of HIV 595f342e71
