Elements was available in a variety of different versions, with a focus on smaller, entry-level equipment, such as netbooks or smartphones. Elements needed to be purchased in addition to Photoshop Creative Cloud, at an extra cost. Initially, Photoshop Elements and Photoshop CS6 were available separately or

Q: Best way to set up a Microsoft Team Foundation Server on one server but work items are hosted in the cloud I have a developer that will be on-site for 3 days a week so he is not always in front of his computer. I want him to be able to create/manage work items on our TFS server (dev team foundation server). He will use his own laptop to do so. The rest of the week he will be connected to his company's VPN and therefore work with his company's TFS server. We want to be able to see his work items on our TFS server but I'm not sure if I should just enable sync on the TFS server or create a copy of his TFS for him to work off of.

The options seem to be obvious, I can just enable sync or create a backup. I'd like to make sure my implementation is what I'm using is the best way. A: I'd avoid syncing entirely and go with the second approach. A safe way to do this is to create a new data source on the TFS server pointing to your internal TFS server. Setup work item integration between the two and then start reusing the TFS internal database for work item tracking. FILED NOT FOR PUBLICATION JUN 29 2010 MOLLY C. DWYER, CLERK UNITED STATES COURT OF
