Understanding Olive Green Sapphires

Olive green sapphires are formed from corundum, a mineral composed of aluminum oxide. The unique olive hue results from the presence of iron and titanium within the stone, which can create a spectrum of colors ranging from yellowish-green to deep olive. This geological formation typically occurs in metamorphic rocks, where intense heat and pressure cause the minerals to crystallize. In terms of hardness, olive green sapphires rank a 9 on the Mohs scale, making them one of the hardest gemstones available. This durability not only enhances their desirability for jewelry but also ensures that they can withstand the test of time. Clarity is another important property of these stones; high-quality olive green sapphires exhibit minimal inclusions, allowing their unique color to shine through beautifully, captivating the eye and igniting a sense of wonder.
