Understanding Menthol Cigarettes

Menthol cigarettes are crafted with menthol, a compound derived from peppermint or other mint oils. This ingredient imparts a cool, minty flavor that many users find appealing. Unlike traditional cigarettes, menthol cigarettes can numb the throat, making the act of smoking feel less harsh. This characteristic is particularly attractive to new smokers who may be put off by the strong taste of regular tobacco. The appeal of menthol cigarettes extends beyond flavor; they have been marketed to provide a smoother smoking experience, often leading to a preference among certain demographics. It's worth noting that menthol cigarettes have been at the center of various public health discussions, leading to scrutiny and regulations in some regions, but their popularity remains strong among many smokers.
