Print on demand (POD) is a fulfillment process that allows individuals to create and sell custom apparel without the need for inventory or upfront costs. When a customer places an order, the item is printed and shipped directly to them, eliminating the risk of unsold stock. This model has become increasingly popular among consumers who appreciate personalized apparel and entrepreneurs looking to enter the fashion industry. The flexibility it offers is unmatched; sellers can test designs and styles without the financial burden of traditional retail. This has transformed how we approach fashion, making it more accessible and tailored to individual tastes.
